P&H, district suspend talks; Walters drops airport bombshell

BY ED LEPOMA

Talks have broken off between all entities involved in a current feud over coveted land near Stennis International Airport.

Board of Supervisors President Philip Moran was hoping to resolve the dispute in a special meeting Monday night, but was unable to convince fellow supervisors to withdraw their challenge to land that the Port and Harbor Commission and the Hancock County School District both need for expansion.

Supervisors have joined with the P&H to appeal to the state Supreme Court a lower court ruling that would not allow the two bodies to intervene in eminent domain proceedings that the School District has initiated in order to gain 20 acres of land north of the airport on which it plans to build a new middle school.

The P&H claims it also needs the plot for expansion, and constructing another school so close to Hancock County High School jeopardizes the airport's ability to expand and to lure potential and lucrative air cargo operations. The Commission also claims another school so close to the airport would increase danger to students.

The dispute has been ongoing for months, and at the opening of the meeting, Moran made an effort to break the impasse, asking all parties to "once and for all wrap this up."

School District President Cheryl Bennett said, "It is our hope that this (meeting) will bring some closure."

Bennett said the recent announcement that a major casino might begin building in Diamondhead will further impact the school district.

"We stand firm on the location we decided on... We're bursting at the seams..."

School Board President Cheryl Bennett

She said now that the giant Wellman project is underway at Port Bienville Industrial Park, "The growth (in the school district) has been substantial. We're bursting at the seams."

Bennett added that the court dispute is draining away monies for legal fees that could be used for schools.

P&H Director Hal Walters made it clear he did not want to give up the fight. He dropped

Fire destroys home

BY BETSY GAGNET

A heaping mound of charred rubbish is all that's left of the home of Ken and Annie Hitchcock in the Lakeshore area.

A fire which began Sunday ripped through the home, destroying everything from appliances to furniture to clothing. A burnt piece of red paper is a reminder of the recently purchased Christmas presents which were claimed by the fire.

Ken Hitchcock said he awoke late Sunday night to see flames coming from the bathroom. He and his wife literally escaped with only the clothes on their backs.

"We were in the house," said Hitchcock, who received burns to his back in the fire. "We had to go through the fire to get out."

He was unable to save the family dog of 10 years, a loss he and his wife are trying to cope with.

Surveying the damage

Ken Hitchcock surveys what is left of his home after a fire Sunday night claimed his and his wife's trailer and all of their belongings. Hancock County Fire Marshal Richard Pate said the fire started near a space heater, and has ruled the fire accidental. Anyone wishing to help the family should call 467-3497. (Echo staff photo by Richard Meek)

Supervisors weighing health clinic options

BY ED LEPOMA

Supervisors are weighing options on the quickest way to get the Coastal Family Health Clinic up and running again in Hancock County.

Coastal's Executive Director Joe Dawsey presented several options to supervisors in a letter they received in a recess meeting Thursday, Dec. 4. Dawsey all but ruled out trying to renovate the abandoned and deteriorating Health Department building on Duncan Avenue.

Dawsey said inspections showed the building is in "extreme disrepair," and estimates were it would cost between $50,000 and $65,000 to replace the leaking roof and bring the entire building up to code. He said the building is only 3,100 square feet and estimates are the clinic would require between 4,000 and 4,100 square feet.

Dawsey said the site also has only 12 parking spaces, and most of those would be taken up by a proposed staff of 10 people.

Dawsey suggested if supervisors sell the building, they might want to give the proceeds to Coastal to use to purchase an existing building or to be used to construct a new one. Supervisors have already ear-

Oak Harbor residents oppose mini-warehouse

BY ED LEPOMA

Residents of Oak Harbor subdivision, who have filed a court challenge contesting the commercial zoning given parts of Hwy. 90 in Pearlinton, are now contesting another commercial venture.

They turned out at last Thursday's meeting of the Hancock County Planning Commission to register their strong opposition to plans by AnnaJay Investments, Inc., to build a mini-storage warehouse and office on an acre of land that fronts on the south side of Hwy. 90, near the entrance to the upscale subdivision.

The same investment company, whose president is real estate developer, J.C. Breshear, has already gotten planning commission and Board of Supervisors approval to construct a convenience store and deli that would also front Hwy. 90 and would be a little more than 100 feet from the latest development.

Oak Harbor residents have already filed a Circuit Court suit attempting to overturn the decision that cleared the way for the convenience store. After Commissioners voted 4-0 to approve the special exception and grant commercial zoning to a portion of the lot that would extend into the residential area, residents again said they might file another court challenge.

Brenda May, who led the fight against the convenience store, said Commissioners should not have even considered the latest request by Breshear until a judge decides on the status of the entire lot. "It's out of this board's jurisdiction," said May. "We have already made our point clear. We do not want any type of commercial development in front of our subdivision."

Noel Gillin, another resident, said he would like to see a proposed layout of the mini-storage facility, so he could decide whether he would favor or oppose it.

"They just raised our taxes. If they put more commercial out there, it's going to raise my taxes again," said Gillin.

Commission attorney John Scaife pointed out, however, at this point, a design of the mini-storage facility was not needed, but it would be required further along in the approval process.

Commission Chairman C.A. Russ pointed out that there were numerous public hearings, including one in Pearlinton, that were held to inform citizens before supervisors adopted a Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance last January. He said a certain portion of land fronting Hwy. 90 near Oak Harbor was designated for commercial development, and there were no objections raised at that time.

"This area needs to be commercial. It's the best use of the land," said Russ, "unless the court rules otherwise."

Hough case closed

BY RICHARD MEEK

The deaths of Sudie and Marshall Hough last month have officially been ruled a murder-suicide, Hancock County Chief Deputy Nathan Hoda said.

"The pathologists' report leads us to conclude it was a murder-suicide," Hoda said. "The case is closed. However, should there arise any new evidence to the contrary, we will reopen the case."

The Houghs were found dead on their Old Joe Moran home last month. At the time, investigators believed Marshall Hough, 56, shot his wife Sudie, 55, then turned the gun on himself.

Marshall was a retired attorney from New Orleans who was in his first year teaching at Hancock North Central Elementary School. He had previously taught at North Bay Elementary.

Post Office extends hours

The holidays mean more things to do and more places to go. With all the extra activities, there's little time left to buy stamps, mail parcels or take care of your many holiday mailing needs.

As a special holiday season convenience the Post Office has extended its business hours at many locations throughout this area.

"The holidays are here, and we're here to help," Officer in Charge Tim Machen said.

Machen said also that the post office will continue to provide its other convenient services to assist customers, such as Stamps by Mail, Stamps by Phone (1-800-STAMP 24) and Priority Mail and Express Mail services.

"CUEVAS' QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Holiday activities were really at their height last weekend, many of which were on the same day and at the same time.

There are still many activities scheduled before the end of the holiday season.

On Friday, Dec. 12, from 1 to 4 p.m., Hancock Medical Center's annual Open House is scheduled.

There will be holiday refreshments and Santa to receive the wish list from youngsters.

On Friday night, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's annual Christmas party and installation of officers will be held.

The chamber function will take place at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church Community Center on Friday evening.

Rear Admiral Paul G. Gaffney is the guest speaker.

It will be good to meet again with Adm. Gaffney, a former resident of Diamondhead, who was very active in local community affairs prior to his promotion and moving to his present Navy position in Washington.

Breakfast with Santa is an opportunity for youngsters to meet with Santa and give him their special requests on Saturday from 8 a.m. until 11 a.m.

The Kiwanis Club of Hancock County and Hancock Medical Center are sponsoring the breakfast with tickets at $4 each.

Photos with Santa will be available at $4 each, or two for $6.

Sounds like a fun time for the youngsters and time for them to give their wishes for Christmas.

Also on Saturday there will be special activities at the Hancock County Welcome Center on Interstate 10. There will be a Holiday Open House with refreshments and entertainment from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

If you have not yet visited the Hancock County Welcome Center, this would be a good time to see how our state runs Welcome Center functions. Center manager Bobbie Tate and her staff do a very fine job making great first impressions on visitors to our state.

They are helped frequently by volunteers from Hancock County, who want to help our community prosper, too.

On Sunday evening at 6, Main Street United Methodist Church will hold its annual Hanging of the Greens. Christmas Cards from Main Street will feature performances of a combination of choirs and special Christmas selections by Jay Heitzmann. The general public is invited and encouraged to attend.

Sunday evening, the Diamondhead Parade of Lights will be held at dusk at the Yacht Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Claus will be arriving by boat and will be parading through the Yacht Club area.

As you can see, there will be many opportunities for the youngsters to visit with Santa to give him their wishes for the coming year.

We hope to see you about town at the many holiday functions.

Saturday is a big day for the residents of Pearlinton and surrounding area.

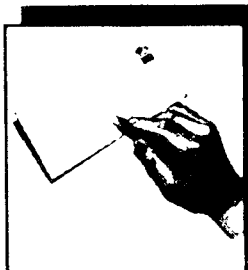

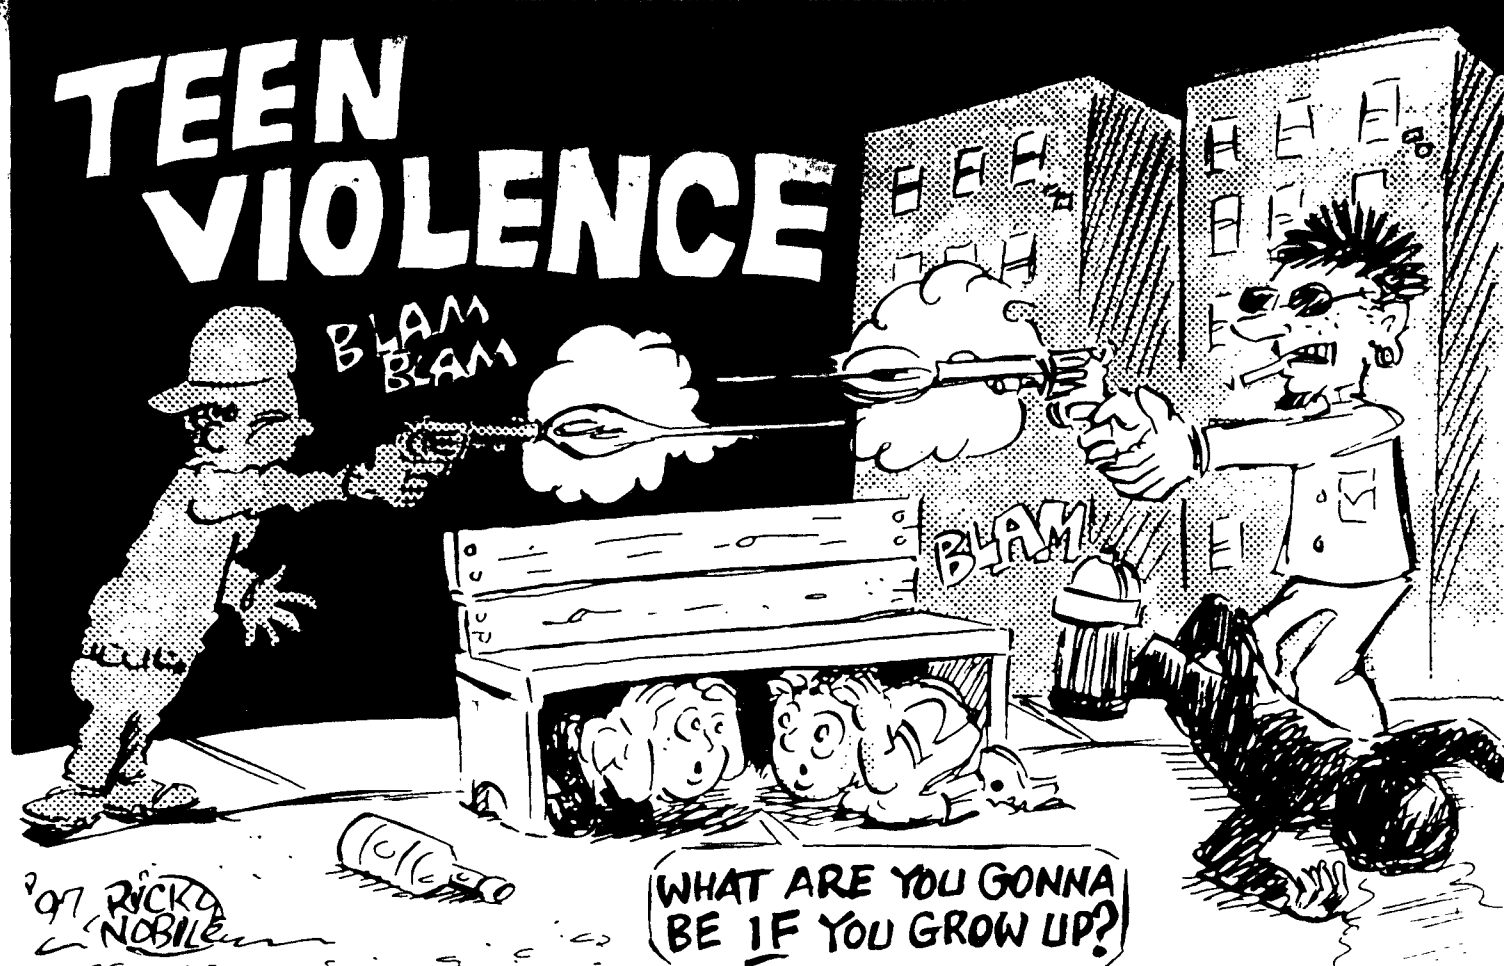

The West Hancock Volunteer Fire Department is coordinating a Recycling Day in Pearlinton from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Everything from worn-out tires of all sizes, waste oil, batteries, etc. will be collected on the Recycling Day.

The West Hancock Volunteer Fire Department will also have fire and rescue trucks on display at the fire station which will act as the headquarters for the recycling.

The general public is invited and urged to come out and meet the volunteer firefighters.

We hope to see you there Saturday.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Beach resident unhappy with property tax increase

Dear Editor,

In my mail of Dec. 4 I received a polite apologetic letter from my supplemental insurance carrier, Blue Cross, my hospital entrance would be increased $4, my time limit for hospital from 160 days upward 50 cents. I tossed it, the amounts being negligible.

My next piece of mail, a notice that my residence tax would be increased from $1,241 to $2,859, an increase of over 100 percent.

I had been looking for my notice because it comes well in advance of Christmas. I had anticipated an increase due to the recent increase supporting teachers' salaries.

I was at the voting place early in the morning to avoid later crowds. I wholeheartedly support this increase, so very badly needed.

I was hoping that an error had been the cause, but the tax office verified my notice. I again reread the figures several times.

It is very gratifying to know that my home has such an increased actual value, but can I after 25 years and at our age sell and relocate to pay the taxes?

It would certainly seem like some more earlier notice be given by television or newspaper instead of by Feb. 1, 1998.

Nothing's sure but death and taxes. Maybe it should have read taxes then death.

Well, Donner, Comet nor Blitzen this year will have to be satisfied with Thanksgiving leftovers.

Yours truly,

Dr. and Mrs. Earl Breaux

Writer says discipline is part of quality education

To the Editor:

I was shocked, and disturbed to see the actions of some of the parents in Waveland and in New York when it came to school discipline. We wonder what is wrong with our schools, and I can tell you it is the parents.

Some of the parents have undermined the teachers' authority, and the students know that they do not have to mind. Now we have chaos in some of our schools.

Years ago, if a child was punished in school, they could count on getting punished again when they got home. The parents may not have agreed with the teacher, but the child never new. The child thought that the parent agreed wholeheartedly with the teacher.

If we want quality education for our children, then we had better support our teachers. Discipline is part of quality education.

Sincerely,

Richard Hopkins

Unvented heaters can be source of carbon monoxide poisoning

Make sure that your home is safe from dangerous carbon monoxide (CO) gas when using space heaters this winter. As temperatures drop, it is important to recognize that exposure to this colorless, odorless gas can be prevented by examining your home for potential leaks.

Carbon monoxide is a common byproduct of combustion, present whenever fossil fuels are burned. Malfunctioning or unvented gas or oil-fueled home appliances such as heaters, clothes dryers, furnaces, ranges, ovens and fireplaces are the most common sources. Automobile exhaust also contains high levels of carbon monoxide, which can seep into a home if a car is left running in an attached garage.

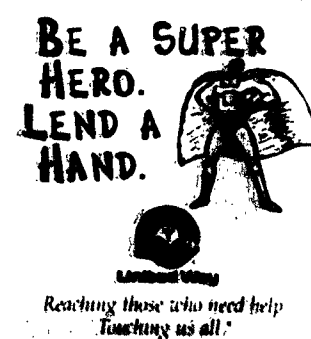

Even at low levels of exposure, the gas causes health problems, according to Sean Appleyard, M.D., Hancock Medical Center's interim director of emergency medicine. An entire family was recently treated in the emergency department after being exposed to dangerous levels of carbon monoxide generated by a poorly ventilated stove which they were using to heat their home.

When inhaled, carbon monoxide attracts hemoglobin in the bloodstream, which normally carries life-giving oxygen to cells and tissues. Even a small amount of CO quickly binds with hemoglobin in the blood, displacing the essential oxygen that organs need to function.

The toxic compound which is formed in the blood, carboxyhemoglobin, causes symptoms similar to influenza. They include headaches, fatigue, nausea, dizzy spells, confusion and irritability. Increased levels of the deadly gas cause vomiting, loss of consciousness and eventually brain damage or death.

Other than making sure that your appliances are properly vented, the Consumer Product Safety Commission recommends installing at least one carbon monoxide alarm with an audible warning signal near the sleeping area. Alarms are available at several local hardware stores, with prices starting around $20.

Preventing underage drinking

Every parent knows that children grow up too fast. It seems like one day they are learning to ride a bicycle, and the next they are learning to drive. This is particularly true in today's world, where children are dealing with "adult" problems at younger and younger ages.

It is sad, but children of the age when their biggest worry should be learning their multiplication tables are now having to make important decisions about alcohol use. Making the right decisions is often a matter of whether a child has talked with his or her parents about the dangers of alcohol.

Unfortunately, too many parents have not discussed alcohol abuse with their young children because they think "certainly, my child is too young to be confronted with alcohol." The reality is that children as young as elementary school age are already drinking. Ready or not, it is time to have that discussion.

In order to combat this growing problem, The Century Council, an organization that fights drunk driving and illegal underage drinking and is supported by America's leading distillers, the Mississippi Department of Public Safety, Blockbuster Entertainment, and the Boys & Girls Clubs of Mississippi have joined force to launch Ready or Not: Talking with Kids about Alcohol.

The program is designed to provide parents, teachers and law enforcement officials with the necessary tools to discuss alcohol with children at an early age.

Ready or Not is designed to stop underage, illegal drinking before it starts. It was developed, tested and implemented in towns across Michigan before being launched nationwide.

The program encourages the entire community to get involved in stopping underage drinking before it starts, by working with the Boys & Girls Clubs, churches, schools and workplaces.

Experts say the best time to talk with children about alcohol is before they are teenagers, when they still listen to every word their parents say. This is why this program is so unique, because it takes advantage of the special relationship between parents and their young children.

By the time children reach their teens, peer pressure creates a great deal of competition for their attention.

I am very hopeful that Ready or Not will make a major difference in underage, illegal drinking in Mississippi. It is a serious problem in our state.

In fact, Mississippi is one of only two states whose number of alcohol-related traffic fatalities has increased over the last 10 years. The 48 other states have seen a decline in those numbers.

A toll free number — 1/800-624-9575 — has been established for anyone seeking program information or local referrals. In addition, the Ready or Not video is available as a free rental at all local Blockbuster Video stores.

As Ready or Not kicks off in Mississippi, I hope everyone will take the time to get involved so we can put an end to underage drinking.

Parents should start at home by talking to their young children, even though it may seem too soon for such serious discussions.

Children grow up fast, and ready or not, they will soon have to make tough decisions about alcohol. Help them make the right choice.

Senator Lott welcomes any questions and/or comments about this column. Please write to: Senator Trent Lott, 487 Russell Building, Washington, D.C. 20510 (Attention: Press Office).

Talks

a bombshell when he claimed that he recently learned that Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott has been working in the background to begin negotiations that would locate a new New Orleans International Airport at the present site of Stennis.

However, Liz Mavar, a spokesperson in Lott's Washington, D.C. office, told the Echo that rumor was "purely speculative."

She added that the senator has consistently worked for funding to bring the Instrument Landing System and other improvements to Stennis, and will continue to work to gain more federal funding for Stennis.

Walters told the Echo the rumor came out of a question-and-answer session following Lott's address on the Coast last week to the Gulf Coast Economic Council. He said Lott's assistant in his Gulfport office, Robbie Maxwell, told him someone out of the audience asked Lott "if there was any truth that his staff was working on positioning Stennis to become the site of a future New Orleans Airport, and Lott revealed there had been some preliminary discussions.

The news that talks had even begun came as a complete surprise to Michelle Dufour, public affairs director of New Orleans International Airport.

"We don't have any plans to go anywhere," said Dufour. "We're staying where we are."

New Orleans City Councilman Peggy Wilson, a frequent critic of management at New Orleans Airport, said she remained hopeful that New Orleans and Kenner officials and citizens could work out plans for greater cooperation that would ensure future growth of the airport at the present site.

"I guess at one time I said, if they can't, then maybe we should look at Hancock County," said Wilson. "But I remain hopeful the airport can grow and prosper at the present site."

Alan Katz, public relations consultant to New Orleans Mayor Marc Morial, said, "The mayor remains committed to the idea that the New Orleans International Airport is the airport for the future."

He did admit that the administration has been under constant pressure from Kenner citizens, who are opposed to further expansion into residential neighborhoods and to noise generated by current operations.

Walters also had a printout showing that industry at Port Bienville contributed more than $1 million in taxes to the School District in 1995, and said when Wellman comes on line, tax revenues to the school district will substantially increase.

"The resources necessary to build an educational system of superior quality would be difficult, if not impossible without the tax contributions of business and commerce," said Walters.

Walters asked the three agencies to sit down "and find some middle ground on which we can forge a resolution acceptable to us all."

He said there were currently three alternate sites where a new middle school could be located. Two are located on the east side of Hwy. 603 in close proximity to the present high school, Walters said, and a third is available further up the highway on the Kiln-DeLisle Road.

School Board member Tony Gaston discounted claims another school so close to the airport would increase the danger to students. He said there was an elementary school near the Gulfport Regional Airport, and others, like Dulles International in Virginia, were allowed to expand into federal reserve

Fire

The devastating loss is made worse by the fact that Annie Hitchcock has emphysema and is on oxygen. All of her breathing equipment had to be replaced. Miraculously, her oxygen tank did not explode in the fire, said Hitchcock.

"If it had blown up, I don't think any of us would be here," he said.

However, all of Annie Hitchcock's medication was lost in the fire, and she will have to wait until the end of the month for her next medicare allowance to replace it, Ken said.

Also lost in the fire was a recently purchased electric wheelchair used by Annie, who has had hip surgery and had both knees replaced.

Hitchcock said he lost his glasses, a necessity for his work as a barber at his shop, Ken's Barber Shop, on Coleman Avenue in Waveland. Fred's in Waveland provided him with an over the counter pair of glasses, but Hitchcock said he will need to replace his old ones before he can return to work.

Hitchcock said there was no insurance on the structure, and is still unsure of plans to rebuild.

The couple have received some clothes from the Waveland Fire Department, which also brought over some food as did the Waveland Civic Association. The Hancock County Sheriff's Department, and the American Legion Post 77 have also tried to help with donations.

Despite the tragedy, Hitchcock said he is grateful.

"I thank the Lord we got out with our lives," he said.

marked $10,000 this year to Coastal's operations, and was going to allow the clinic to locate in the Health Department building rent-free if it could be repaired.

Dawsey said supervisors might want to think of purchasing an existing building or constructing a new clinic. Advantages would be that by leasing from the county, the cost of rent would be somewhat controlled, Dawsey said.

If supervisors decide on building, Dawsey said the facility could be built to specifications and the county could decide on the best location, but he admitted it might be a time-consuming process.

Dawsey told the Echo Monday he was interested in reopening in Hancock County "as soon as possible," but he did not think he could find a suitable building in time to open the first of next year as first envisioned.

He said he planned to begin soon to look for a suitable building to lease, at least temporarily.

Coastal closed in Hancock County more than two years ago, forcing the poor and elderly to travel to clinics that remained open in Harrison County. For some, especially in the westernmost and northern parts of the county, it meant a long distance to travel in attempts to get low-cost medical assistance.

Since the clinic closed, supervisors and community activist Geraldine Lang have urged Coastal to reapply for another grant so a clinic could be re-established in Hancock County, and news of renewed funding was announced by Dawsey last October.

In fact, Dawsey told the Echo this week that Coastal's Hancock Clinic got more money than was requested. He said the 15-month grant from the U.S. Public Health Department amounted to $549,441. This will allow the clinic to pay a medical and clerical support staff, in addition to paying rent or helping to construct a facility.

No decisions were made at the recess meeting, but District 2 Supervisor Lisa Cowand said she was leaning towards having Coastal look into leasing an existing building.

"That way, we can get up and running faster," said Cowand.

Supervisors might already have a sale for the deteriorating building. SentryCare, the corporation that runs the Dunbar Village assistant retirement complex nearby, has informed supervisors that the firm would be interested in purchasing the property if a price could be agreed upon. He said the building could be incorporated into Dunbar's future development plans.

President Chris Cheek also told supervisors at their October meeting that SentryCare would oppose a clinic locating so close to its retirement complex because of the traffic that might be generated and because Dunbar Avenue is primarily a residential area.

Some decision on how to proceed may come when supervisors hold a recess meeting on Dec. 15.

residents didn't participate in that September drive.

Crews will be set up at the site to collect old tires, waste oil and used batteries. Fire and rescue crews will also be on site to talk with children and answer any questions.

"We'll be collecting boat, trailer, car, tractor and truck tires and batteries, along with motor oils," Bailey said.

He said he hoped to expand on the items collected in next year's drive.

Bailey suggested that residents might want to help elderly or ill neighbors collect their items, and take them to the fire station for them.

Environmental consultant Jo Ann Casey, who organized the Waveland drive, will be coordinating the Saturday event.

Signals

said whenever new signals are installed, officials look to see what signals are warranted and what are not.

"We checked to see if a dedicated left hand turn was warranted and it was not," Twedt said. "If time is dedicated for movement (turning) that is not warranted, it slows things down."

The rule of thumb on traffic count to warrant a dedicated turning signal is 100 cars per hour, he said, although other factors, such as the configuration of the turn may also play a part. Traffic at the intersections were observed last month with 47 left turns recorded at Dunbar and 53 at McLaurin.

Both Waveland and Bay St. Louis city officials have received complaints about the removal of the signals.

In Waveland, Public Works Director Steve Landry said he has received complaints from citizens and from businesses located near the intersection.

Waveland Police Chief Jimmy Varnell said the city has seen an increase of traffic incidents at McLaurin. He said there have also been incidents at intersections of Highway 90 and Nicholson and Waveland avenues where a left hand turn on green is now permitted.

"It allows you to turn on green and if there is a car on the opposite side, you can't see and you have to put your nose out there first," said Varnell.

In Bay St. Louis, Police Chief Frank McNeil said there has been an increase of incidents at several intersections which lack a protected left hand turn.

"We seem to show an increase of accidents not only at Dunbar, but at Washington and Main Street," McNeil said, adding that the city has seen a much increased traffic flow in the past five or six years.

Twedt said the intersections will be reviewed again, possibly next year if requested by the cities, and the protected left turn will be returned if warranted.

He said the signals which are being installed, can be "easily upgraded" if and when the turn signals are warranted.

He added that the turning bay at Dunbar has been extended to accommodate cars making the left turn, but it was not possible to extend the bay at McLaurin.

Still to be completed under the project is drainage work under Highway 90 at its intersections with Carroll Avenue and Second Street in Bay St. Louis.

Another MDOT project on Highway 90 may soon be in the works. Twedt said there are plans to let a contract next summer to grind the pavement smooth on Highway 90 where it comes into Waveland.

ments will be served.

DOLLS AND BEARS

Margaret Arnos and all those ladies in the Diamondhead "Sew and Sew" group have dressed 96 dolls and bears to be given out by the Salvation Army to some special little people for Christmas.

You may view their labors of love in the lobby of the main branch of the Hancock Bank in Gulfport Dec. 15-17. The Salvation Army's gift program distributes to the children Dec. 22-24.

CARNEGIE HALL AND BACK

Remember the Bay Area Chorale, formed right here in Diamondhead? Well, now over 50 members strong, this Coast community chorus is called the Coast Chorale.

They have just returned from a performance at New York's Carnegie Hall.

You have the opportunity to hear these heavenly voices repeat some of the music Friday, Dec. 12 at 7 p.m. at the Nativity of BVM Cathedral in Biloxi.

Judith D'Angelo will be the soloist. A second performance will be at Trinity Episcopal Church in Pass Christian at 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 14 with soloist Karen Rainer.

Admission is free.

These wonderful musicians, under the direction of Joy Mehrtens, have come "into their own" in such a short time. Let them put you in the Christmas spirit.

NEW PLACES

Diamondhead welcomes the beautiful new United Methodist Church located at 5305 Noma Drive behind the Community Church. They invite neighbors and friends to visit "a place where you experience God's gifts."

CHRISTMAS CANTATA

"This Day Is Born Emmanuel" will be presented at the Diamondhead Community

Church by the choir Sunday, Dec. 14 at 10 a.m.

Soloists are Janet Richards and Wade Stinson. Narrators are Nan Hall and Henrietta Kelty, and we welcome back Jean Keen, accompanist.

All are invited to this special Christmas present to the community.

THOUGHTS TO SHARE

The joy of brightening other's lives, hearing each other's burdens, easing other's loads, and supplanting empty hearts and lives with generous gifts, becomes for us the "magic" of Christmas.

Let us be of good cheer with family and friends throughout this holiday season and enjoy the "magic."

SPORTS

10-THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1997

Bob Harmon Football Forecast

NFL Forecast
Saturday, Sunday and Monday,
Dec. 13-15

Pittsburgh, 24—New England, 20
(Saturday) In the 1996 AFC divisional playoffs, the Patriots shut the Steelers down with three Curtis Martin TD's and a dominating defense, 28-3. This one will be closer, but it'll go the other way.
Washington, 17—N.Y. Giants, 13
Three weeks ago, in a game featuring seven fumbles, four interceptions and a bizarre end zone wall head-butt, the Redskins and Giants tied 7-7. We still think Washington is the better team.
Dallas, 19—Cincinnati, 12
(Sunday) The Cowboys have battled the Bengals six times and won four, most recently 23-20 in '94. This year, almost any team poses a challenge for Dallas, but Cincy doesn't have the defense to win.
Green Bay, 26—Carolina, 18
It's hard to believe that this is a rematch of last year's NFC Championship, won by the Packers 30-13. But with G.B. on the road for the third straight week, it may still be a great game.
Jacksonville, 21—Buffalo, 19
This, too, may be closer than expected. Not only can the Bills handle the Jaguars' passing attack, but they're aiming to get even for a 30-27 first-round playoff loss to the Jags in '96.
Kansas City, 27—San Diego, 15
The Chiefs spanked the Chargers on a Thursday night in October, 31-1, as QB Elvis Grbac threw two TD passes to Andre Rison and ran for another. S.D.'s run defense will keep it interesting.
Miami, 23—Indianapolis, 14
In Week One, the Dolphins limped past the Colts 16-10 as QB Dan Marino had his least productive passing day since '89. Since then Miami's air game has thrived — as has Indy's pass defense.

*Minnesota, 28—Detroit, 21
Polling up 477 yards in Pontiac, Mich., four weeks ago, the Lions ended the Vikings' six-game winning streak, 38-15. Minnesota's D hasn't gotten better, but it's their dome this time.
*New Orleans, 15—Arizona, 12
If you're looking for offensive firepower, this isn't the game you want to watch. Neither team moves the ball, so the Saints will win with defense. Last year the Cardinals beat N.O. 28-14.
Philadelphia, 31—Atlanta, 13
Clearly superior on both sides of the ball, the Eagles should have an easy time with the Falcons — as they did in '96 at the Georgia Dome, picking off five Atlanta passes in a 33-18 victory.
*St. Louis, 18—Chicago, 10
This shapes up as another defensive fight, because both the Rams and Bears are better — slightly — without the ball. They've traded wins since '90; last year Chicago dominated at home, 35-9.
Seattle, 35—Oakland, 24
Led by QB Warren Moon's 409 yards of passing and five TD tosses, the Seahawks gunned down the Raiders in Week Nine, 45-34. Seattle has a chance for its first sweep of Oakland in the '90.
Tampa Bay, 22—N.Y. Jets, 20
We never figured this would be one of the biggest interconference games of the year. It may be one of the closest, too, though the Jets are 5-1 against the Buccaneers. They last met in '91.
Tennessee, 21—Baltimore, 17
The Oilers are the better team now, but in September the Ravens forced five Tennessee turnovers and Vinny Testaverde threw for 318 yards in a 36-10 rout. The Oilers will need pass defense.
*San Francisco, 33—Denver, 21
(Monday) There's no better offense in the league than the Broncos' and no better defense than the 49ers'. In their last two matchups — one of them Super Bowl XXIV — S.F. has outscored Denver 97-29.

Soccerplex work continues

Members of the Bay High School soccer team worked last weekend clearing stumps and debris from the site of a future field at the Scott Demboski Memorial Soccerplex located on Longfellow Road. Several of the fields are currently in use and the facility has already hosted a tournament for under-8 teams. When completed, the complex will be able to host Mississippi Youth Soccer Association district playoffs, state finals and special tournaments. The 12-acre site will have seven fields, concession stand, picnic pavilion and restrooms. Bay Area Youth Soccer League officials are seeking volunteers and donations to help complete work at the complex. (Sea Coast Echo photo by Randy Ponder)

Parents question cancellation of classes

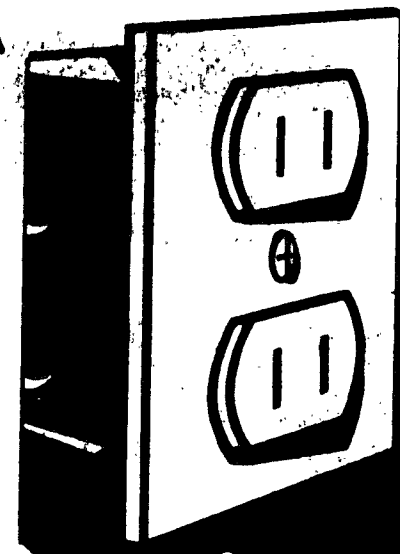

Associated Press
One Choctaw County parent is upset that classes were cancelled district-wide Friday because two of the county's high school football teams were playing in championship games this weekend.
In a letter to state and county education officials, Jack Griffith of French Camp called the move "ridiculous," saying such priorities reflect why Mississippi is ranked at the bottom of the national scale in public education.
Weir High School played Scott Central in the Mississippi Class 1A championship game Friday afternoon in Jackson. Ackerman plays Booneville in the Class 2A title game Saturday afternoon, also at Mississippi Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Choctaw County education officials said classes were canceled Friday because a high fan turnout at the weekend games were necessary.
Griffith said athletics should come secondary to academics in Mississippi public schools.
"I guess the real issue here is that football in Mississippi has become a kind of god. Instead of making our priority education, we have made it sports ... and more succinctly, football," Griffith wrote.
The letter was sent to state Superintendent of Education Tom Burnham and Choctaw County Superintendent of Education Ty Cobb.
The superintendent and principals at each Choctaw

County district school made the decision to cancel classes, according to Cobb. He said it is unusual for two Choctaw schools to be playing in state championships and that community, school and faculty representation at the game was important.

Other schools in the district, including elementary levels, are also closed since students may have older siblings involved in game activities, Cobb said.

Cobb said Friday will be used as a bad weather day, and students will attend school the state-mandated 180 days. He said if bad weather later forces schools to close, a day would be added at the end of the year.

SSC wins Hancock Tourney; Tigers, Lady Tigers win in Pass

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

The championship night in the Hancock High Invitational saw the two host teams shut out of the titles.

The Lady Hawks were victorious in their championship game but lost the title in a point differential system, which determined the tournament title.

On the boys' side, the St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws avenged an early season loss to the cross-county rivals from Hancock to claim the boys' title.

In the first game Saturday, the Our Lady Academy Crescents fell to the Long Beach Bearkittens 72-36. Long Beach took a 20-8 lead in the first period as the Crescents never threatened.

The Bearkittens started the second period with an 11-0 run before Jessica Keller ended OLA's scoring drought at the 4:04 mark with a layup.

Mistakes plagued the OLA squad during the game, which saw the Crescents commit 17 turnovers in the second period alone. By halftime, Long Beach had extended its lead to 33-16.

The Bearkittens cruised to the win by outscoring the Crescents 22-8 in the final stanza. Catherine Wood led the Bearkittens with 14 points. Keller scored a game-high 17 points for OLA.

The second girls' game pitted Hancock against the Lady Warriors of d'Iberville. Hancock won 50-47 in dramatic fashion when a three-pointer banked off the glass at the buzzer by Keyona Acker. However, the win did not give the Lady Hawks the title as d'Iberville won the title by virtue of the point differential system.

The Lady Warriors took a 14-13 lead at the end of the first period behind the hot hands of P.J. Burr. She also started the second period off with a three-pointer to push the score to 17-13.

Mindy Ladner took charge for the Lady Hawks in the second period, scoring six points. Both teams went into intermission tied at 23.

Hancock came out strong in the third period on fire from outside. Christy Ladner stepped in for the Lady Hawks and nailed three three-pointers. Hancock outscored the Lady Warriors 11-7 in the third period to push the score to 34-30.

Christy Ladner kept Hancock alive in the final period scoring eight points. Burr tied the game 47-47 for the Warriors by making two free throws with 27 seconds left in the game. The Lady Hawks turned the ball back over to the Warriors on the inbound pass. Maranda Cuevas stole the ball from Burr and hit a streaking Acker, who banked the three-pointer from the top of the key as the buzzer sounded. Coach Sandy Albright of Hancock commented, "It was a tight game the whole way through. We knew it would be a tough game for us but (Acker) pulled through with a tough shot. She has been playing well for us and is only a freshman."

"This was Jessica Pucheu's first game back from twisting an ankle last week. Mindy Ladner played a strong game for us on the inside. I'm sorry that we didn't win the title, but I would rather win the game than a trophy."

Mindy Ladner finished the game with 19 points. Burr led the Warriors with 13 points.

In the finale, the Rocks downed the Hawks 57-32 to avenge an early season loss.

The Rocks opened up a 6-0 lead on the Hawks and never looked back. Hancock's Kimmie Ladner hit a three-pointer at the 4:01 mark to pull the Hawks to within one, but that was as close as it would get.

The Hawks scored at the 2:17 mark of the first period with Donnie Carver hitting a jump shot but didn't score again till the 4:57 mark of the second period when Ryan Stenf nailed a three-pointer to cut the lead to 28-13. During Hancock's scoring drought, the Rocks went on a 15-0 run, highlighted by the play and scoring of Brantley Ladner who had six points during that stretch.

The halftime score was 39-19.

Ladner continued his hot streak in the third period, scoring six points while the Hawks went 1-8 from the charity stripe. SSC pushed its lead to 48-24 after three periods.

The fourth period saw both teams struggle in the scoring column as SSC tallied only nine points while Hancock scored eight points.

Coach Michael Ladner of Hancock stated, "SSC executed their offense and defense well tonight. We lacked the intensity to keep pressure on them as they took us out of our sets. Donnie Carver, as always, hustled all game for us."

SSC's Jay Ladner commented, "It was a good win for us tonight, because it wasn't too long ago that they beat us. We got a quick start and came out ready to play. Brantley Ladner had a real good tournament for us. We beat a real good team at their home court tonight."

"Mike had his kids prepared, and they played hard all game. That is what makes this win rewarding for us, knowing that we beat a well-coached and hard-nosed team like Hancock."

Carver led Hancock with 12 points. Derek Bradley had a game-high 17 points for SSC.

The girls All-Tournament team was Keller for OLA, Wood for Long Beach, Ladner for Hancock, and Burr and Veronica Evans for d'Iberville.

The boys' All-Tournament team was Carver for Hancock, Derek and Marvin Taylor for Long Beach, and Paul Farve and Brantley Ladner for SSC. Pass Christian Tournament BOYS

Bay High 78, Pass Christian 75 — Jason Robinson's three-pointer with 20 seconds remaining earned the Tigers the tournament title.

Robinson's trey capped a Bay High fourth quarter rally. The Tigers had entered the quarter on the short end of a 57-51 score.

But Bay outscored the Pirates 6-0 in the final quarter.

Stevie Lizana scored 21 points and Reion Galloway 20 for Bay High. Robinson added 11 points.

Kentrell Bell led Pass Christian with 24 points. Rudy Bell had 16 points and Sammy Morgan 15.

Bay High 62, Pass Christian 34 — Chandeley Haley scored 24 points and Cristina Bradley 15 as the Lady Tigers won the women's title. Haley also had eight rebounds.

Bay High, 13-0, outscored the Lady Pirates 26-7 in the first half, 11-2 in the second quarter.

Leslie Smith led Pass Christian, 6-9, with 11 points.
